Your Child, Cub Scouting, and You — Pack 331

As a parent, you want your child to grow up to be a person of worth: a self-reliant, dependable, and caring individual. Scouting has these same goals. Since 1910 we've been weaving lifetime values into fun and educational activities designed to assist parents in strengthening character, developing good citizenship, enhancing physical fitness, and building self-esteem and ethical values in youth.

Imagine a program that can help your child learn, grow and mature while having fun. Activities in which you participate together with the rest of the family and get to know each other even better. This is exactly what Scouting is. Every activity gives you and your child the chance to discover and share together.

What do Cub Scouts learn? Well, it is a lot more than crafts, games, and outdoor skills. Cub Scout programs are carefully designed to teach things that are useful throughout life. Here are just a few of the things your child can gain through Cub Scouting:

- ◆ A feeling of belonging to a positive and fun group of kids and caring adults.
- ◆ New social skills to help get along with others.
- ◆ Develop new mental skills, from reading and writing to planning and organizing.
- ◆ A greater understanding of other people and the broader world.
- ◆ A system of values that help children grow and make good decisions.
- ◆ Concern and caring for people, and opportunities to help others.
- ◆ Self-confidence and stronger self-esteem.
- ◆ A deeper relationship with family.

With all the negative influences in today's society, Scouting provides children with a positive peer group and a program that is fun and adventurous and helps them to "be prepared" to shape their own future.

Cub Scouting is fun! But it is fun with a purpose. Woven through all the fun is an inspired program that really works. Tried and proven methods are used that transfer values, build character, and develop leadership skills—all in the context of fun and family togetherness.
